DRC COPPER CONCENTRATE EXPORT CLARIFICATION

Perth, Western Australia: Tiger Resources Limited (ASX: TGS) wishes to clarify its position regarding a proposed ban on the export of copper and cobalt concentrates from the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC), where its Kipoi Copper Project is located.

The DRC government announced in April 2013 that it would prevent companies from exporting copper and cobalt concentrates.

The clarification is required following a media report in the Sydney Morning Herald and The Age newspapers on the weekend which said that the ban was for “exports of copper and cobalt” and would “greatly affect Tiger’s operations”.

However, Tiger currently sells more than 80 per cent of its concentrate to smelters within the DRC, as there is strong demand for it domestically. The remainder is sold to a smelter in Zambia but this has support of the DRC government.

Once Tiger’s Stage 2 Solvent Extraction Electrowinning (SXEW) plant, currently under construction, comes online mid-next year, Tiger will produce a high value-added LME-grade copper cathode product. This operation also has DRC government support. Construction of Tiger’s SXEW plant is being funded by HMS operations.

Fairfax Media, which printed the article, have since edited the online version and have printed a clarification today in the two newspapers in which it featured.
